"Having met Jane for the first time years ago at Fuller's Brewery whilst on a tour it was apparent how well educated she is on the world of beer, how passionate she gets for her role and just how easily she can enthuse a crowd. "With much preparation and a great AV show, Jane Peyton gave an inspiring talk at Imbibe Live 2016 on the topical theme of Sour Beers. Engaging her audience from the start – it's not often you see technicolour images of yeast as the first powerpoint slides of a masterclass – she effortlessly guided them through the 'hows' and the 'whys' while also putting her Beer Sommelier knowledge to good use with a tasting of six classics of the style. Definitely a strong performance which made its mark."

Susanna Forbes, Imbibe, Beer & Cider Editor

"I have booked Jane Peyton several times in my capacity as course leader and lecturer, to deliver lectures about British traditions and culture mainly to BA Hons and Post Graduate level overseas fashion and communications students studying in London. Jane's broad understanding of the uniqueness of British culture; her experience of living both in the UK and USA and her experience of working as an executive PR in fashion as well as now having her own brand, has resulted in highly entertaining and enlightening presentations that really engage with students on many levels. Jane is an eloquent, erudite and entertaining speaker and I always look forward to her lectures. I always have excellent feedback from the students. She is reliable, professional and a brilliant, authentic speaker."

"I wanted to say how great I felt all the talks were that I attended, however I really wanted to feedback personally on Jane Peyton's talk about the misunderstood nature of cider. Jane was a phenomenal speaker, and told the story in such a unique and engaging way. I know I speak on behalf of my other two colleagues who also listened in on the talk. Jane's expertise and presentation style really did make this the best talk I attended"
